But Initiative Is Passing To The Allies*PATTON'S FIGHT IN THE NORTH
IS CLOSING SALIENT IT CAP

BY OUR MILITARY COMMENTATOR

NEWS FROM THE BELGIAN BATTLEFRONT LAST NIGHT WAS THE BEST FOR A FORTNIGHT. THE WAIST OF THE GERMAN SALIENT BETWEEN THE NORTH AND SOUTH FLANKS HAS BEEN NARROWED TO SUCH AN EXTENT THAT ALLIED GUNS NOW COMMAND ALL BUT ONE MILE OF THE ENEMY SECTORS BETWEEN MANHAY IN THE NORTH AND BASTOGNE IN THE SOUTH.

RUNDSTEDT'S PROBLEM*Allies Ready For Next MoveFrom MARSHALL YARROW
Supreme H.Q., Saturday.

RUNDSTEDT today is pondering three 1945 resolutions—one of which he must make—as his offensive peters out with the New Year, and as the Allies squeeze the flanks of his salient.

Now he must decide—and quickly—whether to try a new move forward, hold on to what he has gained, or pull back behind the Siegfried Line.

He has committed 20 or more divisions into a battle aimed at winning back the port of Antwerp. They have lost all the dash of the breakthrough, and while Rundstedt cannot in this time to do next, the strength of the Allied forces which stopped him is growing to throw him back.

His "stays where he is" is a military decision. He has the majority point of his salient—he requires more men to hold his 50 miles front north and south. If he starts a race back to the Siegfried Line, weapons of Allied fighter-bombers will attack him all the way.

And if he tries to advance westward, the Allies have the answer ready in guns and armor. The Allies are making progress in Rundstedt's mind as he is making progress in the decision. The Germans are not attacking until the corridor beyond the southern German line to Bastogne.

AMERICAN PATROLS
The tip has been widened. The Americans have entered the village of Moleky, 11 miles due west of Bastogne. They are a mile north of Bastogne, 8 miles south of the town. The arrow-head is 15 miles wide at its base.

The Germans are not driven back as the eastern edge moves forward, making the arrow-head wider and wider. The American troops in the area are making progress in the decision. The Germans are not attacking until the corridor beyond the southern German line to Bastogne.

The Bastogne-Martelange road is reported clear. The road from Moleky to the south-eastward to which is clear.

Another patrol has penetrated into Eichenbach, 12 miles south-east of Diekirch. Only a few miles to the town of Neufchâteau in the vicinity of the Sauer River.

Another advance was carried out by troops into the outskirts of Rocherath, most recently tip of the German salient and only 15 miles from the Meuse.

Heavy fighting is going on around the town itself.

Enemy Pulling Back Panzers
Western Front, Saturday.
Von Rundstedt had already ordered using some Volksgrenadiers and infantry units to hold the walls of the salient while some of the some of the best armored panzers for use in the winter, for, perhaps, immediate use if not strategic use.

Under cover of thick fog and heavy rain, which have spread over most parts of the southern front zone during the past two days, Von Rundstedt has had 48 hours of freedom from serious Allied attacks in which to regroup and plan for the future.

Not Enough Fighters*LUFTWAFFE CAN'T SAVE GERMANY

From DENIS MARTIN, Reuter's Special Correspondent

with 2nd T.A.F., Belgium, Saturday.
The turn of the tide on the Western Front has brought an eleventh hour crisis to the depleted Luftwaffe. A vicious circle has developed.

If the dwindling force of German fighters is maintained over the front lines, complete devastation of the crumbling German railway system is only a matter of time.

If an attempt is made to defend the railways, front-line fighters will be hammered to pieces.

There is reason for the belief that one of the main objectives of Von Rundstedt's push was to gain time for further production of jet-propelled fighters and V-weapons before the spring sees the Allies of the unparallel air offensive.

UNSUITABLE DRONES
Grave weaknesses have become apparent in the force of fighters mastered by the German Luftwaffe. This news strengthened the Allied position on the Western Front.

The overwhelming strength of the Allied air force and their ability to strike simultaneously at many different points make it impossible for the Luftwaffe to concentrate on any given target.

The Germans—never envisaging war on their own frontiers—are left off air operations for battle purposes.

The position on the German front is increasingly imperilled by the chaos on the railways. All signs—Allied airmen in North-Western Europe are not given to undue optimism—point to a further decline in Luftwaffe power—Reuter.

Our 'Bag' Is Now 16,000

BETWEEN 16,000 and 20,000 German prisoners have been captured since the start of Von Rundstedt's offensive. Luxembourg said last night.

The U.S. Army is taking 1,000 prisoners a day and General Hodges' First Army is accounting for 200 a day, the radio said.

The First Army has taken 8,700 prisoners since the German offensive claimed that it had been wiped out.

U.S. Third Army has taken 5,351 prisoners since the enemy offensive was launched.

Petrol For Our Men On Leave
Many of the Second Army's men starting home leave on New Year's Day will get petrol coupons for 200 miles if they have cars or motor-cycles, said B.U.P.

This decision is to give the men the fullest seven days possible before they return to the military battlefields of North-Western Europe.

Telegrams have been pouring home from men during the past week, saying they are on leave. They have been warned to exercise the strictest control on what they say while they are on leave so that no military secrets shall possibly leak out.

Shot Despite White Flag*NAZIS MURDER SOVIET ENVOYS

SOVIET emissaries sent to offer surrender terms to the city of Budapest were murdered in cold blood by the Germans, stated a special Soviet announcement last night.

One Soviet officer, carrying a white flag, was first shot and killed by the Germans.

Another, also carrying a white flag, was received by the Germans and delivered the terms. He was then shot in the back and killed.

The Russian surrender terms, in the hands of the emissaries, were being sent to the city of Budapest.

The terms were:—
1.—All German troops to cease fighting immediately.

2.—All transport to be handed over intact.

3.—All officers to retain their decorations and badges.

4.—All wounded to receive medical aid.

5.—All wounded to receive medical aid.

The Soviet statement describes the German act as "premeditated murder and a violation of the rules of war," and laid the responsibility for the eventual destruction of Budapest on the Germans.

Berlin announced last night that the New Year has opened a new offensive from Bratislava.

MOSCOW SILENCE
Last night's Soviet communique (quoted as food of snags made no mention of this new move, but on similar occasions previously Moscow had maintained silence on a new push reported by the Germans.

The German news agency declared that the new offensive developed when the Red Army between Lake Balaton and the southern bank of the Danube turned eastwards and on Friday night struck against the Bratislava plain.

Rundstedt's Dilemma—Run Or Fight

HIS ARMY'S NEW FACE

A SMASHING REVERSE

BEWILDERMENT in this country over the initial successes of the German "surprise" offensive in the West is giving way to more reassuring thoughts. The reason is not so much due to reaction of the Allied command as to the heroic resistance of U.S. formations that held key towns against everything von Rundstedt could throw in.

The picture of the battle becomes clearer. Already it is evident that the German attacking power has been considerably blunted, and though von Rundstedt may yet unleash new but restricted forces in another thrust towards the Meuse, his armour has been so weakened and his air support curtailed, that any possible thrust is slight compared with the unenviable position we are in over a week ago. Despite territorial gains and a possible dislocation of Allied command, the German High Command must regard their offensive already as a comparative failure.

By Our Diplomatic Correspondent

THEY have not gained any objective they set out for. Their outposts near the Meuse have been thrust back and their flank exposed. The danger from Patton's crack armour in the south is growing.

They have lost 1,000 tanks and more than 2,000 planes. Though they have gained territory, the German High Command must regard their offensive already as a comparative failure.

Von Rundstedt's offensive was backed up by powerful new armour and new planes. It was believed to have piled up reserves of tanks and supplies at the rear of his salient.

The fact that he is getting weary of moving heavy armour further westward indicates that he may have lost his boldness so far as the present drive is concerned.

The enemy salient has narrowed and become more vulnerable. His armour, which was thought to be a standstill, in other words, has been brought back off and now he must make the most difficult decision of all—how to work to his defensive lines or face a smashing defeat.

In either case, the Allies, given their superior resources, will need retraining and regrouping.

BERLIN has changed its tune. The vicious battle of the Ardennes has been transformed into a battle of attrition. Soon, however, there will be talk of strategic withdrawals and the need to have a "strategic reserve" of troops.

Allied plans for their offensive.

Von Rundstedt, despite splendid champagne, is in a bad mood. At the outset, damburst by the weather, he has a little more good. If the heads of Allied commanders fall—as some Washington circles hint—there is little doubt that the German High Command will suffer.

After backed up his star divisions with the best that the German army has to offer, the cream of the remaining infantry divisions will be sent to the front.

With all the talk of a "strategic reserve" of troops, the reformed Luftwaffe in the West.

Even German blows may come. It is questionable whether or not the enemy can mount a serious offensive as the present one.

The next month or two, the world of free peoples and nations yet enslaved looks forward to the end of the war.

FIGHTING MEN WILL COME HOME TO WORK

Hundreds Of Millions To Provide New Jobs

THE Government is planning to begin a huge programme of public works soon after the war ends, to ensure that Servicemen will have a job to go to when they are demobilised.

When the fighting in Germany ceases, many wartime factories will close.

Others will stop production for a time while new machinery is being installed to enable them to switch over to the manufacture of peacetime goods.

But the Government is determined that there will be a job for everyone, despite the industrial dislocation which is inevitable while the change-over is taking place.

Work schemes, to cost hundreds of millions of pounds, are being prepared. They include:

ROAD CONSTRUCTION, including trunk motorways linking up all the big towns and cities and ports.

HOUSE-STEP PREPARATION, so that everything will be ready for the actual work of erecting houses.

RECONSTRUCTION OF HARBOURS, many of which need repairing, and many of which will have to be enlarged.

RAILWAYS—Engines, rolling stock, buildings and permanent ways are in need of repairs.

SEWERAGE AND WATER—Local authorities have been asked to prepare big schemes.

AFRICANIZATION, involving the planting of many new forests in the selected parts of the country.

ELECTRIFICATION, including the re-connection of the grid to many rural districts.

SCIENCE HELPS Science is also to be a hand in the job of providing work, and a grant of £50,000,000 is being made to new industries and expanded old ones.

It is understood that some M.P.s. think that the annual £2,250,000 grant to Universities should be quadrupled, that at least as much money be spent on rebuilding and re-equipping the armed forces, and that technical staffs should be raised.

Mr. E. T. Sall, chairman of the Parliamentary and Scientific Committee, said that the Government should be encouraged still further to undertake such schemes.

BUILT SHELTER IN LAWN, SUED BY LANDLORD

A QUESTION of outstanding importance to thousands of landlords and tenants will be raised in a case shortly to be tried in the High Court.

It relates to the position of a tenant in respect of air-raid shelters and other constructions and alterations that he may have made to the premises he has occupied and the grounds adjoining in consequence of wartime conditions.

In the action, a landlord is claiming damages from a tenant who, during the tenure, without the landlord's consent, had an underground shelter made in the lawn.

It was covered with concrete, with mounds of earth heaped above it.

The landlord's contention is that the tenant, on giving up possession, should have restored the lawn to the condition in which it was when the tenancy began, and that he, the landlord, is entitled to damages sufficient to cover the cost of such restoration.

The principle involved applies to the erection of surface shelters, the digging up of lawns and vegetables, the alteration of indoor rooms for shelter purposes, and so on.

It is expected that the judgment of the court will define the rights and liabilities of landlords and tenants in such matters.

WIDE TELLS YOU

BY next Sunday it should be clear that Rundstedt has not only overplayed his hand but has committed Germany to disaster. The principal consequences appear gradually a fortnight hence. Our strategy will have undergone a compulsory change for the better. Expect great news.

Among other things coming to an abrupt halt, leading to the fact that the German Navy has been bearing the brunt of the attack for more than usual interest. As to this the appearance of new war gadgets, enabling hitherto impracticable moves to be made, is a factor. Specific suggestions of dates are forbidden, but I remind you that it was stated here that it is a period fraught with enormous consequences.

These things mean a heartening beginning to 1935. I am sure there is still greater importance in Washington doing this next few weeks. The President is now moving in on a programme which includes much increased production of munitions, and a definite policy announcement.

Americans are going to reach at heavier restrictions and more planning, plus more conscription. They will, however, share our pleasure in depicting under planning with Britain on our side and our dear old ally.

Enemy hopes of a widening rift are foreshadowed. Sensations are running along. WE are entering a month packed with changes and sudden show-downs which must alter even today's calculations. This mood finds reflection in Mediterranean discussions, in a favour, and in the onset of an unusual series of new tie-ups.

Stated with the big picture in the new tie-ups only serve by February to underline Germany's failure to deliver the goods. Recognition of this in the Allies has been followed by overtures. But they come too late.

For the Nazis bank on holding the Allies back past April-May in most international affairs. (Word)

LET'S HOPE JACK FROST DOESN'T RUN THIS TIME!

By LARRY LYNN
I HAVEN'T yet heard a rumble over the Christmas meetings being washed out, which says much for the good sportsmanship of all concerned in National Hunt racing.

At the same time it was not surprising that my sympathies went out to the Windsor people who had, after a first-class bustle, got the track over for the first time in 1934. The fact that the meeting was washed out on the day of their second attempt at January 13, when the racing was to have been the first of the season, is a reflection on the state of the weather.

Question of organizing substitute meetings is a matter which has been brought up by the Duke of Norfolk and the Duke of Devonshire, and it is at their next conference in January that the matter will be decided. Owners and trainers will await the decision with interest.

Such loss cannot be afforded, especially with a strengthening of the weather. The situation of Rundstedt's forces could be a factor in the decision. Leave it at that. But surely even the German High Command can be expected to see the situation in the light of the weather.

"Bordes for courses" is not a motto for the future. It is a motto for the past. It is a motto for the future. It is a motto for the past. It is a motto for the future.

Carrying 10 at 9 lb. he beat Irish Duke (12 at 10 lb.) and Devon (12 at 10 lb.) in a good race. The winner was a good one. The winner was a good one. The winner was a good one.

Slavon, with Irish Duke and one or two others, was a good one. Slavon, with Irish Duke and one or two others, was a good one. Slavon, with Irish Duke and one or two others, was a good one.
